EXPLANATORY NOTES

This bill amends the Act respecting health services and social services to improve the quality of care.

To that end, the Government must determine a maximum number of patients per nurse, nursing assistant and beneficiary attendant in certain departments of hospital centres and in residential and long-term care centres.

Furthermore, the bill provides for the establishment of an advisory committee entrusted with making recommendations to the Government on the maximum number of patients per nurse, nursing assistant and beneficiary attendant that should be set in a government regulation. The committee is also responsible for producing a report on the implementation of the regulation and on the regulation’s impact on the quality of care.

– Act respecting health services and social services (chapter S-4.2).
