(240) Mr. LeBel (Rimouski) – 3 June 2021
To the Government

As part of the Semaine québécoise des personnes handicapées held from 1 to 7 June 2021, I would like to question the Government of Québec about its commitment to put in place a pilot project to help adults with disabilities quit residential and long-term care centres.

When Mr. Jonathan Marchand, who suffers from muscular dystrophy, protested in front of the Parliament Building last August, I supported him to show my solidarity with persons with severe disabilities who wish to live with dignity. This 44-year-old man has been fighting for a very long time to regain full independence.

A pilot project was announced for the summer of 2021, but the Government's vision appears to be contested. Apparently, the Ministère de la Santé et des Services sociaux (MSSS) would like to create a housing model that would group a number of people with physical limitations.

The alternative proposed by people with disabilities would be to create a self-managed personal assistance program. They could recruit caregivers to provide homecare services and support them in their activities. This approach would allow them to contribute to society.

The Government's proposed model is not innovative. They are reproducing a model that already exists. Unfortunately, it does not help people with disabilities regain their independence.

My question is the following:

Why is the opinion of people with disabilities not being considered in order to provide adequate services that are adapted to their needs?
