BUSINESS STANDING IN THE NAME OF MEMBERS IN OPPOSITION

(85) 15 March 2022

Motion moved by the Member for Hochelaga-Maisonneuve

THAT the National Assembly acknowledge the constantly rising inflation which has a huge impact on the cost of living for citizens, especially for those with a modest income;

THAT it note that the Government's planned increase in the minimum wage does not enable workers to absorb the increasing costs;

THAT the National Assembly ask the Government to introduce a plan to gradually increase the minimum wage to at least $18 per hour by 1 May 2023 to ensure the predictability of such increases;

THAT the National Assembly ask the Government to include support measures for small businesses and the community in its plan to increase the minimum wage.

Part 5

WRITTEN QUESTIONS

Questions already placed on the Order Paper are published each Wednesday

- (57) Ms. Lessard-Therrien (Rouyn-Noranda-Témiscamingue) – 8 February 2022
To the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food

The Farm Income Stabilization Insurance Program (ASRA) is a collective program that pays compensation when a product's average selling price is lower than the insured income based on the average production cost of specialized farm businesses.

All the production cost expense items, except the remuneration of operators (producer-owners), are updated every five years using a new survey.

Although it is indexed annually, the historical remuneration to which that indexing applies no longer reflects the reality of today's operators, as demonstrated by the work of the Centre d'études sur les coûts de production en agriculture (CECPA).

To remedy this situation, CECPA proposes that the methodology be adjusted to better reflect the number of hours worked and management time spent by operators. With the proposed adjustments, CECPA's calculations justify an increase in operator remuneration of between 12.8% and 15.9%. This increase would result in an annual salary of between $74,100 and $76,100 (compared to $65,685 for 2019).

In December 2019, the board of directors of the Financière agricole du Québec (FADQ) accepted the conclusions in the CECPA report and forwarded the report to the Ministère de l'Agriculture, des Pêcheries et de l'Alimentation du Québec to obtain the required authorizations. The FADQ has estimated that this update would cost a maximum of $20 million per year. The additional cost could be funded from the FADQ's budget surplus.

Since then, the Minister has not revealed his plans.

My questions to the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food are the following:

- Will the Minister take the necessary steps to update operator remuneration in the ASRA program, as recommended by the Financière agricole du Québec?
- Does the Minister have a timetable for completing this update, which is so beneficial to our farm producers?

(58) Mr. Zanetti (Jean-Lesage) – 8 February 2022

To the Minister for Health and Social Services

The number of Quebecers with dementia will double in the next 20 years, a “tidal wave” that is predictable, but for which the health network is not prepared, experts warn. Nouha Ben Gaied, director of research and development at the Federation of Québec Alzheimer Societies, says that the next disease of the century is Alzheimer’s. Alzheimer’s disease is the most common form of dementia, which covers the spectrum of symptoms associated with declining mental functions. According to the World Health Organization (WHO), there is a new case of Alzheimer’s every seven seconds. We have seen the breakthroughs made possible by significant government investments in scientific and medical research for other public health issues such as HIV/AIDS. The Alzheimer Society of Canada recommends an investment of $150 million over five years to implement a fully funded and robust national dementia strategy.

In this context, my questions to the Minister for Health and Social Services are the following:

- How much public money has been invested annually over the past 10 years in dementia and Alzheimer’s research?
- What investments are planned for this research in future years?

To the Government

The labour shortage is very significant for the community organizations and public institutions working in the field of health and social services not only in Québec, but also in my region, the Bas-Saint-Laurent.

The Québec government's Opération main-d'œuvre was announced in recent weeks. This initiative aims to address the labour shortage in Québec, in certain targeted sectors, including professions related to mental health and youth protection. Perspective Québec incentive scholarships will be offered to students in the health and social services sector. Surprisingly, the social work program does not appear in the list of programs included by the Ministère de l'Enseignement supérieur. However, social work graduates have been working in these sectors for more than 50 years.

This non-recognition of the social work program will result in future students going into programs that are eligible for these scholarships, such as special education or university programs. Obviously, when students have to choose a program, they will prefer the one that offers financial incentives of up to $15,000. However, the social work program prepares future workers able to serve in the field of health and social services.

According to teachers at the Cégep de Rimouski, excluding college students in social work from this program will worsen the shortage of workers in the CISSS and community organizations, even though this program was created specifically to address this shortage.

My questions are the following:

- Why did the Minister of Higher Education and her department exclude the social work program and on what grounds did they come to this conclusion?
- Will the Government add the social work program to the list of programs recognized for the Perspective Québec scholarships, since we need more and more workers now?

To the Minister of Justice

On January 11, we learned from an article in the newspaper Le Droit that a man stood trial in a prison lavatory.

A 46-year-old man, incarcerated at the Rivière-des-Prairies detention centre, attended a two-hour Gatineau courthouse hearing via videoconference from a washroom. In addition, no chair was provided to the accused and the background noise was such that the trial had to be suspended.

What is even more surprising is that, according to the same article, this is not a unique situation. In fact, one correctional officer said that all video appearances were made from the washrooms.

When asked to comment on the situation, Jean-Claude Bernheim, President of the John Howard Society of Quebec, said he was utterly shocked and appalled.

Can the Minister tell us if he supports the practice of making video appearances from correctional facility washrooms, and if he does not support this practice, can he tell us what solutions will be implemented to ensure that dignity is upheld in our justice system?

To the Government

There has been a shortage of veterinarians in the Est-du-Québec region, in particular in my riding of Rimouski, for many years.

If your pet is in pain, you must wait and hope to quickly find a veterinarian to ease its suffering, which is sad. However, if you are a farmer, this wait has a price, and it is often expensive: a loss of time, of production and sometimes even of an animal that plays a key role in your farm's income. This week, La Presse reported that some farmers have had to euthanize animals because of the wait time for obtaining a veterinarian's assistance.

It is therefore unacceptable that the citizens in my riding, who help supply the Québec pantry and who in doing so earn their living, sustain such losses. Yet there is a solution. It was even presented to the Government which, against all logic, has dilly-dallied in implementing it.

I am referring here to the faculty of veterinary medicine of Université de Montréal which, in collaboration with Université du Québec à Rimouski (UQAR), submitted a plan more than a year ago, in December 2020, to open a second veterinary training centre in Rimouski. In Québec, those who wish to enter this profession may only attend a university program in Saint-Hyacinthe.

These two universities' joint project offers a win-win situation. First, it would increase the capacity for veterinary training from the current number of 96 per year to nearly 130. In the context of a shortage, these additional veterinarians would be very welcome. Furthermore, the fact that these professionals could be trained in Rimouski would surely contribute to the attraction and retention of aspiring veterinarians in our region, thus reducing the severe shortage in the region.

My question is the following:

Considering the fact that we would have to wait at least seven years from the date of its announcement before reaping any benefits, will the Government commit to immediately approving the plan to establish a veterinary medicine campus submitted by Université de Montréal and UQAR?

(69) Mr. Zanetti (Jean-Lesage) – 17 February 2022
To the Minister for Health and Social Services

I would like to bring to the Minister for Health and Social Services' attention, the subject of funding for the community organizations under his department's responsibility.

Autonomous community action organizations play an essential role in our society by driving social development and providing a social safety net in Québec. In his department, 3,000 organizations operate in the health and social services sector. Unfortunately, in recent years, government funding has not improved the situation of these groups overall, but rather has only increased the funding of certain less-funded organizations. The 2019, 2020 and 2021 budgets represented a mere 2 to 5% increase in the PSOC envelope and, as such, hardly made an impact. In addition, the funding of organizations is indexed based on the Consumer Price Index, despite the fact that their operating costs increase at a greater rate than that of households, and this adds pressure on these groups.

Community groups operating in the health and social services sector make an essential contribution to the Minister's mission, and it is high time that this contribution be appropriately recognized. For many years, these groups have been advocating for recognition of the extent of the financial needs of the 4,000 autonomous community action organizations in Québec and for acknowledgement of the negative impacts they have sustained because of underfunding. These impacts significantly affect not only the people served by these organizations, but also the already difficult working conditions of their workers. In 2019, under the direction of the Minister of Labour, Employment and Social Solidarity, the Government began work to develop a new government action plan on community action to ensure greater recognition and support of community action. These consultations have been held but we are still waiting for the policy plan and the funds earmarked to implement it properly.

In light of the aforementioned, my questions to the Minister for Health and Social Services are the following:

1. Does the Minister intend to ensure that the Government honours its commitment to table a government action plan on community action and that the plan will be accompanied by substantial investments that will sustainably support the mission of the organizations under the PSOC?
2. Does the Minister intend to ensure that this increase in PSOC funding is included in the next budget?

To the Government

According to an analysis of the most recent data compiled by Le Devoir, francophone CÉGEPs and universities in Québec's regions are sustaining the greatest collateral damage from the high rates of rejection of international students by Immigration Canada.

It is increasingly apparent that Canada is systematically rejecting en masse students from francophone African countries. The education sector in Québec is denouncing its impact on such an essential clientele, one which is highly welcomed in the regions.

We learned that the rejection rates for international student visa applications to attend any of the regional campuses of Université du Québec (UQ) are often as high as 60% to 80%. The rejection rates in anglophone universities are much lower.

According to Le Devoir, the results for Université du Québec à Trois-Rivières (UQTR) speak volumes. Last year, 79% of the 9,000 students who applied for a study permit were rejected by Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada (IRCC). In 2020 and 2019, the rejection rates were 88% and 78%, respectively.

The rejection rate for study permits was highest among students from francophone African countries, reaching as high as 90%. Université du Québec à Rimouski (UQAR), which admits many francophone African students, saw over 70% of its 2,000 international students denied a visa.

The rejection rates for study permits could also be higher for colleges in the regions. Many universities and CÉGEPs in the regions operate and innovate by developing their training thanks to the contribution of international students. International recruitment is more active in the programs for fields where there is a labour shortage.

It is unacceptable that our universities and CÉGEPs should sustain collateral damage due to the high rates of rejection of international students by Immigration Canada, both from the standpoint of the students, whose dreams are shattered, and of our regions, who heartily anticipate this new cultural wealth and, of course, this workforce we so sorely need.

My questions are the following:

Has the Government communicated to Ottawa the concerns of our university and college networks and, if not, does it intend to do so?

How does the Government intend to support those networks and ensure that the regions can welcome the international francophone students who wish to study in Québec and perhaps even settle here?

To the Government

When a diagnosis of autism spectrum disorder (ASD) is made, parents' lives are turned upside down. Obviously, this comes with an increase in stressors, numerous appointments, financial needs and psychological distress for the parents. To keep their balance and that of the family, parents need assistance, whether it is psychosocial or financial.

It is extremely difficult to obtain the supplement for handicapped children and, furthermore, the administrative burden returns over the years despite the permanent diagnosis. This is a neurological problem, not a physical one. It is an invisible disability, but it obviously has an impact on the family.

My question is the following:

Autism spectrum disorder is a permanent neurodevelopmental disability that will be present throughout the person's entire life. Will the Government recognize and consider this diagnosis as permanent by stopping the reassessments to renew Retraite Québec's supplement for handicapped children?

To the Minister Responsible for Government Administration and Chair of the Conseil du trésor

On 3 February 2022, the Minister Responsible for Government Administration and Chair of the Conseil du trésor tabled Bill 12, An Act mainly to promote Québec-sourced and responsible procurement by public bodies, to reinforce the integrity regime of enterprises and to increase the powers of the Autorité des marchés publics.

The purpose of this bill is to promote local purchasing, the taking into account of factors other than price (mainly environmental considerations) and public procurement integrity. It also provides that public bodies must conduct an evaluation of their procurement requirements that furthers the pursuit of sustainable development and that tenderers concerned with high standards of environmental integrity may be favoured when awarding public contracts.

In the last two years, Quebecers have used and disposed of several hundreds of thousands of disposable face masks. On a worldwide scale, 129 billion single-use masks are used every month. And yet, reusable, ecological and safe alternatives have been developed right here in Québec.

For example, ECO99 masks, which meet CNESST standards and BNQ certification criteria and which are effective after 100 maintenance cycles – or the masks made by Frétt Design, a Québec company that has invested more than half a million dollars in research and development to design masks that comply with the American Society for Testing and Materials' ASTM F3502 standard as well as the EN 14683 standard, which is the requirement for medical face masks in Europe. Even though these reusable masks have been recognized by a number of independent experts and consultants as being equivalent to the N95 mask, they are unfortunately still subject to outdated regulations with a standard meant for high-particulate work environments, such as mines.

In view of the foregoing, my question to the Minister responsible for Government Administration and Chair of the Conseil du trésor is as follows:

In order to adhere to the principles of Bill 12, will the Conseil du trésor fulfill its duty to set an example by recommending the purchase of safe and Québec-made reusable masks for the Government's non-medical organizations and institutions?

To the Government

After 25 years of work and cooperation, domestic help social economy businesses (EÉSADs) must become the priority partners of the health and social services network for home care. They are the largest home care provider outside the public network.

Unfortunately, the work of the Réseau de coopération des EÉSAD shows that there is a lack of access to home care due to the limited financial capacity of seniors. I believe that there is an urgent need to act.

The EÉSADs are committed to immediately and significantly expanding their services if the government adopts simple and effective measures that reflect Quebecers' ability to pay. These solutions, many of which could be implemented in the next budget, would make it possible to achieve, in the short term, a major change in the daily lives of seniors, people with a loss of autonomy or functional limitations, and their families.

The announcement of the government's intention to shift to home care coincides with the review of the Financial Assistance Program for Domestic Help Services (PEFSAD), which has been underway for several months. This program accounts for about 25% of home care in Québec, but it could be even more adapted to the needs and be a real lever for strong growth in home care services.

The EÉSADs are the result of a citizen initiative to respond to community needs and they are authorized to offer home care throughout Québec, while prioritizing the most vulnerable users and services adapted to individual needs. The EÉSADs want to participate in the major shift affecting three areas: accessibility and decision-making autonomy, the offer and quality of home care services, and workforce recruitment and retention.

My question is the following:

Will the Government commit to adopting concrete solutions with the EÉSADs to make the necessary shift to home care, while ensuring that EÉSAD users can afford the hours of service they need?
