WRITTEN QUESTIONS

Questions already placed on the Order Paper are published each Wednesday

(76) Mr. Fontecilla (Laurier-Dorion) – 22 March 2022

To the Minister of Municipal Affairs and Housing

On 11 March 2022, the Fédération régionale des OSBL d'habitation de la Montérégie et de l'Estrie (FROHME) and the tenants of Villa Belle Rivière in Richelieu called for the cancellation of the sale of immovables comprising 60 social housing units for seniors to a private developer whose identity has not been revealed to date.

The Villa Belle Rivière owns two buildings whose construction was financed through government subsidies. However, the board of directors of this non-profit organization (NPO) has decided to sell its only immovable assets intended for rental to seniors, and this is while we are experiencing an unprecedented housing crisis and the entire region is mobilized to develop affordable social housing.

According to the spokesperson for the tenants, Ms. Sylvie Adam, residents are very concerned about the situation and want the government to intervene to save the NPO in order to preserve the affordability and quality of the housing units for the seniors who live there and to avoid similar situations in the future.

My questions to the Minister of Municipal Affairs and Housing are the following:

- What does the Minister intend to do to save the Villa Belle Rivière non-profit organization?
- Does the Minister plan to change the legal framework for non-profit organizations to prevent them from being sold to private developers?

(77) Ms. Labrie (Sherbrooke) – 22 March 2022

To the Minister of Education

On 23 September 2020 and 23 August 2021, deputy ministers at the Ministère de l'Éducation (MEQ), Mr. Eric Blackburn and Mr. Alain Sans Cartier, sent correspondence to the directors of school service centres and school boards announcing the launch of a major project to be conducted in close collaboration with the school network and its partners.

The deputy ministers specified the objectives of this major project of the MEQ, namely the simplification of administrative processes related to the declaration of the special education codes and the simplification of associated funding rules, in particular the measure on additional assistance for students with disabilities or serious behavioural problems.

The correspondence reaffirms the Minister of Education's intention to ensure an optimal response to the needs of the province's students and to maximize the impact of professional resources in the communities in order to prioritize direct services to students, beyond administrative processes.

Although the Ministère de l'Éducation confirms, in its correspondence, the extension to June 2022 of the measures aimed at easing the quality assurance process, the school network and its partners, who were initially to take part in the student services funding review project, have still not received any indication of the direction of the project's work, whose recommendations were initially to be part of the plan for the start of the 2022–2023 school year.

Can the Minister of Education inform us of the progress of the work that was initially intended to free up professional resources to better serve students and support their educational success, and can he confirm that the target date for implementing the review of funding of services for students with disabilities, social maladjustments or learning difficulties remains the beginning of the 2022–2023 school year?

(78) Mr. LeBel (Rimouski) – 22 March 2022
To the Government

In the 1990s, oil companies competed fiercely. At that time, you could fill your tank for about 40 cents a litre – something that is hard to imagine when today we are paying almost five times as much, depending on the region. That price war resulted in the closure of many independent gas stations, thereby reducing opportunities for competition in certain markets, particularly in my riding of Rimouski.

Ultimately, this left a multitude of abandoned gas stations. In Rimouski alone, which has 50,000 inhabitants, a good half-dozen of these abandoned facilities still scar the city centre landscape and sides of busy arteries, including Route 132 which runs along the St. Lawrence.

What's more, nothing obliges the operators of gas stations – most often, very profitable oil companies – to decontaminate the land they own or lease, even if for years it represented a highly lucrative, but polluting, business. As a result, we currently find ourselves in a situation where very successful companies can simply leave without having to assume any environmental accountability whatsoever.

They leave the buildings that no longer serve them to rot and decay, leaving the task of decontaminating the hydrocarbon-laden soil to possible future owners or tenants. It's not hard to understand why potential buyers are not rushing to purchase such properties; as such, we continue to be subjected to polluted urban environments and ground soils while no one is held accountable, often for many years. I can point out such a location in my riding that has been abandoned for at least three decades.

Furthermore, there does not appear to be a register of Québec's abandoned gas stations that we can consult. With the expected electrification of automobiles, we expect this phenomenon to worsen. We must therefore address this matter now.

My question to the Minister is the following:

Will the Government commit to legislate to put a stop to the reckless abandonment of gas stations and to oblige the owners or tenants of these facilities to dismantle them and to decontaminate the land before the conclusion of any transaction and within one year of closing?

To the Minister of Finance

Celiac disease is a chronic autoimmune disease. It causes inflammation of the intestine induced by the ingestion of gluten and affects people who are genetically predisposed. There is no known cure to date for celiac disease, other than a strict gluten-free diet.

It is estimated that approximately 85,000 Quebecers may be affected by celiac disease. This disease causes not only physical pain and discomfort, but also significant nutritional deficiencies in both children and adults.

The parents of children with celiac disease receive the Supplement for Handicapped Children. They receive $205 per month until the child reaches the age of majority. Once they reach the age of majority, they are no longer eligible for the Supplement for Handicapped Children. Adults with celiac disease can deduct the costs for gluten-free food under the tax credit for medical expenses. Since 2003, these individuals have been able to claim the additional cost of gluten-free foods as an eligible expense under the tax credit for medical expenses, which amounts to the difference between the cost of gluten-free foods and the cost of similar foods with gluten.

However, the tax credit for adults with celiac disease is problematic for several reasons, including the fact that it disadvantages less affluent individuals who must pay the full amount before being reimbursed. People who do not pay taxes do not have access to the tax credit either. Those who do have access to the tax credit are faced with the administrative burden of keeping track of receipts that fade over time (and cannot be used as supporting documentation) and individual entries of all food receipts. This is so cumbersome and restrictive that many end up abandoning it. According to the preliminary results of a survey carried out in the fall of 2021 by Université de Montréal entitled Vivre avec la maladie cœliaque - évaluation de l'impact sur la qualité de vie, 50% of the participants never filed a tax credit application and 86.8% reported feeling embarrassed by the additional expense of purchasing gluten-free foods.

Therefore, on 12 February 2021, Cœliaque Québec filed a request for access to information (RAI): on the one hand, for documents confirming the number of people who have benefited annually from the tax credit for people with celiac disease in the last 10 years and, on the other hand, the average amount associated with the tax credit. In response to the RAI, the Secrétariat du Conseil du Trésor indicated that it did not have this information. If the government uses the tax credit to determine the differentiated financial needs of people affected by celiac disease, it would be important to know to what extent this measure is actually used and effective.

My question is the following:

Given that it is both inequitable and complex, the tax credit currently available represents an unwarranted barrier to being reimbursed for the one and only treatment for celiac disease, that is, a strict gluten-free diet for life. Why not offer a monthly benefit that would provide financial support to adults with celiac disease? Why not offer the same benefit to people 18 years of age and older, who are recipients of the social solidarity allowance and who are diagnosed with celiac disease, as the one granted to the parents of children with celiac disease through the Régie des Rentes du Québec, i.e. $205 per month, as requested by Cœliaque Québec?

To the Minister of Culture and Communications

On 21 September 2020, the Minister of Culture and Communications announced a call for projects as part of the program Aide au développement des infrastructures culturelles. This program aims to lend support to projects for new construction, expansion, development, upgrading, renovation and restoration of cultural infrastructure, with the goal of helping to restart the Québec economy and promoting access to quality cultural spaces and equipment.

The program has a total envelope of $100 million, consisting of $50 million from the Québec government and $50 million from the Canada Infrastructure Program. Most Canadian provinces and territories have benefited from this program through bilateral agreements to finance their cultural infrastructure. British Columbia, for example, received an envelope similar to that of Québec, but agreed to receive projects also from non-profit organizations.

In Québec, several social economy enterprises and organizations working in the cultural sector could benefit from this restart. For example, the École supérieure de ballet du Québec has been looking for several years for a place to compete with other major North American ballet schools, especially Toronto's, and thereby attract the best talent. Québec's school is currently in a building that is not suited for its activities.

As the Minister just named Ms. Ludmilla Chiriaeff, the founder of this institution soon to celebrate its 45th anniversary, as a historical figure, this is a golden opportunity for Québec to find a location worthy of the international reputation of its students. Management at the École supérieure de ballet du Québec recently had the opportunity to achieve its objective while also preserving our religious heritage by moving into the neighbouring Saint-Denis church. However, due to a lack of financial means it unfortunately does not have the ability to rehabilitate the building. This heartbreaking decision could be overturned if NPOs were accepted as part of this agreement.

My question is the following:

Why did the Minister decide to exclude non-profit organizations from her call for projects under the program Aide au développement des infrastructures culturelles, unlike other Canadian provinces, such as British Columbia?
