EXPLANATORY NOTES

The purpose of this bill is to amend the Anti-Corruption Act in order to broaden the scope of its provisions relating to the protection of whistleblowers and to entrust responsibility for their protection to the Anti-Corruption Commissioner.

Any decision, activity or practice that endangers the longevity, integrity or financial soundness of a body or a person belonging to the public sector, that is in violation of an Act or regulation or that is contrary to the principles of economy, efficiency or effectiveness constitutes a wrongdoing.

Persons subject to the Public Service Act must disclose any information relating to any wrongdoing by a department or public body, and persons who disclose wrongdoings may demand protection of their identity.

The powers of the Commissioner are broadened to include the authority to protect persons who have disclosed wrongdoings under the Act.

Any person who takes a reprisal against a person having disclosed a wrongdoing or cooperated in an audit or an investigation into a wrongdoing is guilty of an offence. The notion of what constitutes a reprisal is also clarified.

Lastly, disciplinary action will be imposed on any public servant who takes a reprisal against a person having disclosed a wrongdoing.

LEGISLATION AMENDED BY THIS BILL:

– Anti-Corruption Act (chapter L-6.1).
