QUÉBEC IS RESILIENT AND CONFIDENT

BUDGET IN BRIEF

Québec is Resilient and Confident

“For a year now, Québec has been facing unprecedented health and economic challenges that have severely impacted its economic and financial situation.

Since the start of this battle, the Québec government has mobilized considerable resources to care for those affected by the pandemic and to support health care workers, who are on the front lines fighting this disease.

With this budget, the government continues to support workers who have lost their jobs and entrepreneurs hit hard by restriction measures.

With the arrival of vaccines, we can now look to the future with cautious optimism.

We are able to return to the challenging and stimulating path that will take Québec to the next step.

This budget is for a resilient Québec that is confident in its future!”

Eric Girard
Minister of Finance

A RETURN TO FISCAL BALANCE WITHIN 7 YEARS

The support measures implemented by the government and the resilience of the Québec economy have limited the deterioration of public finances.

The deficit will reach $12.3 billion in 2021-2022 and drop to $8.5 billion in 2022-2023.

No budgetary deficit offsetting measures will be implemented until Québec's rate of employment returns to its pre-pandemic level.

Fiscal balance is expected to be restored in 2027-2028.

The plan to return to fiscal balance will be based on the following principles:

- The government's commitment not to increase the tax burden
- Expenditure growth in line with revenue growth
- The acceleration of economic growth
- An increased federal contribution to health costs

Debt under control

Its weight remains lower than it was in March 2017 and will decrease from 2024-2025.

The government will maintain its deposits in the Generations Fund
