Part 5

WRITTEN QUESTIONS

Questions already placed on the Order Paper are published each Wednesday

(246) Mr. Ciccone (Marquette) – 11 June 2021

To the Minister of Transport

In Québec, traffic accident victims must deal with the compensation officers at the Société de l'assurance automobile (SAAQ) in order to obtain the assistance to which they are entitled.

These officers are responsible for applying the spirit and the letter of the law, a task they perform diligently.

However, several testimonials brought to my attention suggest that the SAAQ was applying the law too strictly and without the humanity needed to address this type of situation. For example, last January, the show J.E provided a look into the extremely difficult daily lives of victims of traffic accidents.

A number of the victims must live with permanent impairments, such as recurring headaches, ongoing fatigue, anxiety or even cognitive impairments. In addition to having to adapt to their new limiting condition, these people feel abandoned, left alone to deal with the SAAQ to receive the help they are owed.

Victims of traffic accidents are not necessarily familiar with administrative procedures. The SAAQ must act more like a facilitator rather than an opponent when it comes to providing assistance to accident victims. In particular, officers should benefit from greater flexibility in order to adapt to the specific context of each such victim.

On 19 May 2021, in a letter, the Minister made a commitment to table a bill before the National Assembly “within a few months” to address this issue. This would also be an opportunity to revisit the Regulation respecting lump-sum compensation for non-pecuniary damage, whose passage dates to 2000.

Will the Minister commit to relaxing the eligibility criteria for traffic accident victims who have impairments?

Can the Minister confirm his timeline for tabling his bill and guarantee it will be tabled by the end of the next parliamentary session?

Can the Minister confirm that he will update the Regulation respecting lump-sum compensation for non-pecuniary damage by the end of the next parliamentary session?
