WRITTEN QUESTIONS

Questions already placed on the Order Paper are published each Wednesday

- (10) Mr. Bérubé (Matane-Matapédia) – 22 February 2023
To the Minister of Tourism

In February 2022, we learned that the process for the replacement of the Olympic Stadium roof was once again delayed. In an interview at the time, the Minister stated that the review of the timeline was currently on the drawing board adding that she still expected the roof to be replaced as soon as possible.

Can the Minister tell us the timeline for replacing the Olympic Stadium roof?

- (13) Mr. Morin (Acadie) – 14 March 2023
To the Minister Responsible for Relations with the First Nations and the Inuit

At the end of February, members of the Atikamekw community of Wemotaci erected blockades on forest roads to put an end to logging and to preserve their territory in the Haute-Mauricie region.

They consider that the Government, through the Bureau de mise en marché des bois, has acted without prior consultation and, especially, without consent in the planning of forest activities.

The Atikamekw have requested a discussion with the Government but the latter has not yet responded to them.

Can the Minister Responsible for Relations with the First Nations and the Inuit tell us what he intends to do to resolve this situation?

(14) Mr. Bouazzi (Maurice-Richard) – 16 March 2023
To the Minister of Finance

Recently, damning reports from B'Tselem (2021), Human Rights Watch (2021) and Amnesty International (2022), three major Israeli and international human rights organizations, denounced the crime against humanity of apartheid in Israel-Palestine. These reports add to the considerable body of documentation on the issue of violations of international law and human rights by the State of Israel against Palestinians.

As the Minister is no doubt aware, the situation in Israel-Palestine is very closely linked to the territory and its occupation. Under international law, the Israeli settlements in occupied territories constitute a violation of the Fourth Geneva Convention. Consequently, the Government of Canada does not recognize permanent Israeli control over the territories occupied in 1967 – namely the Golan Heights, the West Bank, East Jerusalem and the Gaza Strip.

However, the Société des alcools du Québec currently sells 36 wine products from Israeli. However, half of these were not produced from the juice of grapes grown within the internationally recognized borders of the State of Israel, or were only partially so.

I therefore bring to the attention of the Minister the fact that 18 wine products on the shelves of the SAQ are mislabeled as being of Israeli origin, with the label wording “Made in Israel” or “Product of Israel”.

This labelling is misleading. Several citizens have contacted me and feel deceived and misled by the labeling in question, which denies agricultural exploitation on Palestinian territory that does not comply with international law.

The Canadian Food Inspection Agency (CFIA) issued a decision on 13 May 2022, forwarded to the Liquor Control Board of Ontario (LCBO), concerning two products misidentified as “Products of Israel”. This labeling without explanatory information was considered “false” by the CFIA.

My questions are the following:

- Will the Minister undertake to ensure that the SAQ take the appropriate measures to rectify the situation, that is to say, that it removes the 18 wine products in question until such time as they comply with labelling laws?

- Does the Minister intend to ensure, in the name of respect for international law, that no wine produced in illegal settlements be found on the shelves of the SAQ?

(15) Mr. Bouazzi (Maurice-Richard) – 16 March 2023
To the Minister of Finance

Policy Ltd. is an Israeli company that is the architect and administrator of Israel's National Police Academy. It trains all Israeli police officers, including militarized units, who receive training in repressive practices such as crowd control, house raids, strong-arm techniques, target shooting and undercover operations.

Israel's National Police Academy also trains police officers in prisons, where cases of torture and degrading treatment of Palestinian political prisoners, including children, have been widely documented by both local (Israeli and Palestinian) and international human rights organizations. In concrete terms, Policy is one of the pillars of the ongoing system of oppression and expropriation experienced by Palestinians in Palestine-Israel. You will recall that this system was recently denounced in a cascade of reports from human rights organizations, such as Amnesty International and Human Rights Watch, which see in it the crime against humanity of apartheid.

However, 25% of the shares of the company Policy Ltd. are held by G4S, a private security company targeted by an international campaign since 2012. Although G4S divested itself of its Israeli subsidiary in 2016, it still owns more than a quarter of the shares of Policy Ltd.

Several pension funds or sovereign wealth funds have recently dissociated themselves from G4S, such as KLP, Norges Bank and MP Pension – the Danish pension fund for academics.

However, this is not the case for the CDPQ. Indeed, the Caisse is the main shareholder of Allied Universal, which acquired G4S in 2021. More specifically, Allied Universal maintains a 0.03% investment in Policy. The Caisse is therefore financially linked through its holdings in Policy Ltd.

Given this financial association, the Coalition Boycott, Désinvestissement et Sanctions du Québec (BDS-Quebec) met with the CDPQ twice in 2022. The CDPQ expressed its willingness to socialize its portfolio companies, notably through shareholder dialogue. Its representatives also mentioned that the company no longer brings in income in Israel.

BDS-Quebec points out that the CDPQ's involvement in G4S/Policy, which must end, highlights a much larger problem facing the Caisse: that of the ethical nature of its investments whenever human rights are in question.

My questions are the following:

- In light of the above, is the Minister concerned about the CDPQ's financial association with Policy Ltd?
- Does he intend to ensure that the CDPQ has a specific policy and investment criteria for serious political contexts of human rights violations and that it complies with them?

(16) Ms. Labrie (Sherbrooke) – 22 March 2023
To the Minister of Justice

As the Minister knows, last autumn, the federal government passed Bill C-5, which favours diversion measures for simple drug possession offences. This approach is widely supported by scientific literature and by the hands-on experience of police officers and community organizations. It would help to destigmatize people who use drugs and, by doing so, help better protect their health and dignity. This new legislative measure introduced by the federal government has been very well received by addiction counsellors, who believe that adopting a similar approach in Québec would make it possible to reduce overdose cases while helping to relieve the justice system of cases that are more of a social and public health issue.

My question is the following:

Given that Québec does not have federal prosecutors and that it is up to the Minister to provide guidance to prosecutors on the application of this law, I would like to know when the Minister intends to issue directives in this regard, and what approach he intends to prioritize?

(17) Ms. Ghazal (Mercier) – 22 March 2023
To the Minister of Education

Last September, during the first governing board meeting of Grand-Pré elementary school, the parents and school staff learned that this would be the last year the school would offer specialized language classes. Grand-Pré is a specialized school that serves students with disabilities who have been evaluated by speech therapists as having severely impaired verbal communication and moderately to severely impaired verbal comprehension.

The school is located in the municipality of Saint-Jacques, in the Lanaudière region. It is a specialized school, which makes it distinct from local schools, since it serves all students of the Des Samares school service centre who require services adapted to their needs. This grouping has existed since 1998 and has led to the growth of considerable expertise. The Des Samares school service centre has decided to distribute its classes in five schools spread out across the territory, in particular with the objective of bringing students closer to their school.

Nadia Ménard, president of the governing board and mother of a seven-year-old student at the school remarked that all children attending these classes have severe dysphasia, both in terms of receptive and expressive language skills. Several of them have other disabilities, and the vast majority have experienced a difficult, even catastrophic time in their home school before being admitted to Grand-Pré. Learning that our children would be sent back to so-called regular schools, that the school's expertise was going to vanish, and that this would all be done in a rush in the context of a labour shortage has been very distressing for several families.

The CCSEHDAA, an advisory committee on services for handicapped students and students with social maladjustments or learning disabilities, was not consulted, nor were the parents' committee, the governing board and the teaching staff. No one is against inclusion, but not at any cost; not at the expense of the mental health, development, safety and self-esteem of our children with special needs. Not at the expense of everything they have at Grand-Pré school.

I did a family survey. The majority of them (84% of respondents) support maintaining the current arrangement, sometimes even despite having to travel for almost two hours to get to Grand-Pré. This demonstrates the exceptional, high-quality and reassuring service that our vulnerable children receive there.

We understand the desire of the school service centre to bring closer or even be able to offer language services to the inhabitants of municipalities farther north. What we do not understand is the need to discontinue the excellent services given to the language classes grouping at Grand-Pré. The other argument put forward is that it would allow students in language class to complete their entire elementary education at the same school. This is certainly a praiseworthy idea, but the decision to relocate all classes next September would mean that more than a third of the students would have to attend a third school in three years. We are talking here about children who are very sensitive to change and whose families say that their arrival at Grand-Pré has drastically improved their motivation, learning and behaviour.

Ms. Menard finished by saying that local MNAs, all CAQ members, have informed the Minister of Education about this situation. The Minister would have expressed his disagreement with the decision taken, but since it is not a question of a school closure, but rather a relocation of specialized classes, he would have no authority under the Education Act to take action and exercise a veto. The school service centre thus informed our elected officials that the decision would be maintained, regardless of the opinions of parents and the Ministère de l'Éducation. Parents are anxious and distressed; some are considering withdrawing their child from the school system so as not to expose them to the nightmare they had to go through before their enrolment at Grand-Pré school.

However, research done suggests that the Minister of Education would have a certain discretionary power with regard to the decisions taken by school service centre when services for students with special needs are affected. In particular, when certain committees are not consulted, which is required under the regulations of various school service centres and in keeping with the Education Act.

My questions are the following:

- 1) Given the many procedural errors committed by the Des Samares school service centre, does the Minister intend to reverse this decision?
- 2) Knowing that the majority of parents opposed the reorganization of services, what does the Minister intend to do to help these parents and students?
