Part 5

WRITTEN QUESTIONS

Questions already placed on the Order Paper are published each Wednesday

(113) Mr. Bérubé (Matane-Matapédia) – 28 March 2024

To the Minister of the Environment, the Fight Against Climate Change, Wildlife and Parks

For several years, the MRC des Basques has been asking the Québec government to take action to buy the rights to the Club des Appalaches, the last private hunting and fishing club in Québec, in order to give all citizens access to the right to hunt and fish within its territory. Since 1901, only a small number of hunters and fishers have been authorized to engage in hunting and fishing activities in the unorganized territory of Lac-Boisbouscache, which is the property of the State. This request raises important issues related to environmental preservation, regional development, access to land and territorial governance.

My questions are the following:

Does the Québec government intend to take positive action in regard to this request from the MRC des Basques? If so, what are the details of the procedure? If not, why?

(120) Mr. Bouazzi (Maurice-Richard) – 17 April 2024

To the Minister of Economy, Innovation and Energy

In Québec, energy access issues are invisible, but a significant number of households are in a state of energy poverty. This means that they are struggling to pay their electricity bill and must deprive themselves of other essentials to pay the bill or reduce their electricity consumption to below what is required for their basic needs.

Each year, Hydro-Québec enters into hundreds of thousands of payment arrangements with its residential customers and carries out tens of thousands of service interruptions. For example, in 2019, Hydro-Québec entered into nearly 379,000 payment arrangements with its residential customers. That same year, the homes of 57,000 customers in collections were affected by service interruptions, a number that is equivalent to the population of Saint-Hyacinthe. In 11% of the cases, the customer experienced a service interruption lasting more than a week. During a time of extreme cold or heat, not having electricity for multiple days can jeopardize these people's health.

Consuming energy in your home is not a choice: it is necessary to meet your basic needs, such as eating, heating, washing and staying healthy. Furthermore, access to energy is a condition that must be met for everyone to fully enjoy their fundamental human rights. Energy poverty is therefore a serious problem with very serious consequences.

Poorly ventilated, badly heated, or inadequately insulated housing is a danger to the health and safety of those living in it. The lack of electricity or heating has major impacts on health. For example, cold and damp homes that are inadequately heated increase the rates of mortality and morbidity among vulnerable households. Cold weather and heating issues increase the risk of developing diseases and excess mortality. The same goes for hot weather and air conditioning issues.

Various studies have identified three main families of conditions related to energy poverty: respiratory diseases, cardiovascular diseases and mental illnesses. Energy poverty also increases the risk of infections (due to poor food or personal hygiene) and accidents (due to, among other things, inadequate lighting).

Energy poverty issues also affect people's ability to eat well. How can you preserve and cook your food when your fridge or stove isn't working? To avoid having to eat unsafe food, some households resort to ready-to-eat meals, which significantly increase grocery expenses.

My question is the following:

Although electricity rates are relatively low in Québec, an increasing number of households are struggling to pay their electricity bill. One in seven people (16% of the population of Québec) is experiencing energy poverty. What is the Minister's plan to ensure that the bill to regulate clean energies he has promised to table does not result in more energy poverty in Québec?

(121) Mr. Grandmont (Taschereau) – 24 April 2024

To the Minister of Transport and Sustainable Mobility

Under standard 4202 for hot mix asphalt formulated according to the Laboratoire des chaussées formulation method, the percentage of recycled road surfacing may not exceed 20%, with a limit of 10% for motorway surface layers.

The Québec road construction industry agrees that the percentage of recycled material varies between 14% and 17%, depending on the year. As reported by the US National Asphalt Pavement Association, the road surface recycling rate is 32% in Ohio, 29% in Michigan, 24% in Minnesota, 21% in Wisconsin, and 24% in Idaho, the northernmost states. France recycles 22% of its roads and Germany 28%, according to the European Asphalt Pavement Association. Lastly, Japan recycles 47% of its roads.

Asphalt has been proven to be a 100% recyclable material, and increasing the percentage of recycled asphalt aggregates presents numerous advantages. First, asphalt recycling offers substantial financial savings for taxpayers, simply because the resource (aggregates) to be recycled is already extracted and coated with a bituminous binder and is often available in nearby construction sites. Second, it reduces the GHG emissions resulting from the production process (extraction, production, and transport). Lastly, increasing the volume of recycled aggregates means that the same volume of recycled material is not extracted from Québec's natural resources: quarries, gravel pits and sand pits. Recycling saves natural resources that are not extracted.

Furthermore, road recycling techniques can be carried out in situ or “on site”. In situ road recycling entails all the work involved: collection of existing asphalt, crushing, screening, heating, mixing with binder and reinstallation of the asphalt in a single pass. Finally, the surface is compacted before being reopened to traffic. These techniques are widely used in Ontario (more than a million square metres each year). They are rarely used in Québec (around 100,000 square metres). Yet it is widely accepted that these techniques, which require minimal transport of materials, result in further financial savings, lower GHG emissions and very few untapped natural resources. The Ontario Ministry of Transportation regularly reports at specialized conferences that the quality and service life of existing recycling techniques are identical to or better than those of road construction using new materials.

My questions to the Minister of Transport and Sustainable Mobility are the following:

- What are the targets of the Ministère des Transports et de la Mobilité durable with respect to road recycling?
- What is the recycling trajectory of the Ministère des Transports et de la Mobilité durable, and what are its aims and timeframe?
- Will the Ministère des Transports et de la Mobilité durable impose on site recycling techniques across all its territorial divisions?

(122) Ms. Ghazal (Mercier) – 30 April 2024

To the Minister of Education

The dropout rate for students who fall behind is close to 40%; in fact, more than one in ten students drop out of the regular education system before obtaining a high school diploma.

How does the Minister intend to address this situation?

Can the Minister of Education provide details on its program to support partners in education?

Do we know when the selected organizations will be contacted by the Ministère?

Will the Minister commit to funding the network of special education environments and the Alliance des milieux adaptés de scolarisation du Québec, which provide special education and psychosocial support services for those who are most vulnerable and have not obtained a high school diploma?

(123) Mr. Bérubé (Matane-Matapédia) – 30 April 2024

To the Minister of Culture and Communications

For several years, many organizers of the National Holiday festivities have raised serious issues of underfunding from the financial assistance program for local celebrations.

Organizers and volunteers say they have had to significantly scale down their events in order to fund them with the limited resources available. Others have given up on organizing for the National Holiday, and many have decided to turn to federal funding for their events. This suggests that the future of Québec's National Holiday festivities in our cities and towns is now in the hands of Canadian Heritage.

My questions are the following:

- What is the total annual amount allocated for this program for each year from 2018 to 2024?
- Does the Government intend to increase the financial assistance from this program for 2025?
- If so, what will be the amount for the program for 2025?

(124) Mr. Bérubé (Matane-Matapédia) – 2 May 2024
To the Minister of Culture and Communications

The Maison des métiers d'art de Québec (MMAQ) fulfills a key role in training the next generation of artists and artisans in the Capitale-Nationale region. Every year, more than 80 permanent and temporary employees (artists and cultural workers) ensure quality training for over 130 students, in partnership with other public institutions. Furthermore, over 400 people attend MMAQ courses open to the public each year and its exhibitions attract more than 2,000 visitors.

Unlike most other art training institutions, the MMAQ offers training in the very different fields of ceramics, textile construction and sculpture, all within the same institution. The MMAQ is more than just a training school; it includes three studio schools, making its model unique and strong. However, due to its unique character, the MMAQ incurs penalties in the amounts it receives from the Ministère de la Culture et des Communications (MCC).

To properly carry out its mission, the MMAQ relies on public funding from the Programme d'aide au fonctionnement pour les organismes de formation en art (PAFOFA). Following its 2022–2025 three-year application to PAFOFA in 2022, the MMAQ was awarded $426,367 by the MCC, which is 45% of the amount requested by this institution. However, according to applications filed with the MCC, each of the three MMAQ workshop schools could have benefited from $315,799 in financial assistance for optimal operation, if they had been separate institutions. At present, the amount granted to the MMAQ is barely $142,125 per studio school, whereas the average government funding per studio school in Québec is around $250,000.

The MMAQ's unique structure should not be such a disadvantage, particularly as all institutions are facing substantial cost increases. The MMAQ has sought the support of the Ministère de la Culture et des Communications to obtain the additional funding it requires to continue its activities, failing which it may soon be forced to remortgage its building, or even to close.

My questions to the Minister of Culture and Communications are the following:

- 1- Do the Minister of Culture and Communications and his department intend to grant additional funding to the Maison des métiers d'art de Québec to enable it to continue its activities?
- 2- Does the Government recognize that the calculation grid for the Programme d'aide au fonctionnement pour les organismes de formation en art needs to be revised, to avoid penalizing educational institutions that include several studio schools, such as the Maison des métiers d'art de Québec?
