EXPLANATORY NOTES

This bill amends the Act respecting health services and social services to provide that an intermediate resource or a family-type resource is deemed not to be in the employ of the public institution calling upon its services and that any agreement between them to determine the applicable rules of operation is deemed not to constitute a contract of employment.

The bill confers on the Minister of Health and Social Services the power to enter into an agreement with one or more bodies representing intermediate resources or family-type resources to, in particular, determine the general conditions according to which the activities of those resources are to be carried on and to establish various measures relating to the compensation for the services.

The bill grants to the Minister, rather than to the regional boards, the power to determine the rates or scale of rates of compensation applicable to the services of intermediate resources or family-type resources.

Lastly, the bill contains a transitional provision that concerns the rates of compensation already determined by the regional boards which will continue to be applicable until the Minister has determined new rates.
